Ada County Historic Preservation Council Needs You

(Boise, ID) – In just about one hour per month, you can help preserve Ada County's heritage by serving as a member of the Ada County Historic Preservation Council!

The Board of Ada County Commissioners is currently seeking an individual to serve on the Ada County Historic Preservation Council, which is a volunteer position with a three (3) year term. Professional experience in the disciplines of architecture, history, planning, archaeology, or other historic preservation-related discipline is preferred, but not required.

The Historic Preservation Council promotes historic preservation in a variety of ways: Through public outreach & education, helping to nominate private and public properties for inclusion on the National Register of Historic Places, participating in various land use planning processes, helping with fundraising for specific preservation projects, and by recommending enactment of policies and ordinances intended to protect historic properties. Examples of the Council's past work include the award-winning book Patterns of the Past, the book Echoes from the Ada County Courthouse: 1938-2001 by Arthur A. Hart, the Barns of Ada County poster, and the County Treasures sign program.

The ten (10) member Council holds a one-hour meeting at noon on the first Tuesday of each month. Council-sponsored events are occasionally held on weekends and evenings throughout the year, and prospective members will be expected to attend some but not all such events. Council members may be asked to serve on subcommittees that focus on specific issues which may require additional project meetings and tasks.

Individuals interested in serving on this board are asked to complete a volunteer board application, available at the Ada County Commissioners' Office or on the Web. The Commissioners' Office is located on the third floor of the Ada County Courthouse at 200 W. Front Street, Boise, 83702. The application is also available on the Ada County website at www.adacounty.id.gov/Commissioners, and from there click on the Volunteer Board Information link.

Completed applications may be delivered to the Commissioners' Office at the address above, sent via fax to 287-7009, or e-mailed to bocc1@adaweb.net. Please call 287-7000 for additional information.
