July 9, 2014

Ada County Development Services is now collecting ACHD (Ada County Highway District) Impact fees associated with residential building permits.

The purpose behind this effort is to improve our customer service for those applicants that are required to pay impact fees when applying for a residential building permit. This will save those we serve time and money and further centralize the permitting process.

What does this mean?

Basically, instead of driving to the ACHD office in Garden City to pay fees prior to coming to Development Service at the Ada County courthouse to receive a building permit our customers can simply pay the impact fees and the permit fees at our office at the same time.

There is no additional charge for this service.
