

Paul is a strong advocate for responsible historic preservation and the importance of public support for that effort. His work and schooling experience facilitated his earning a Doctoral degree specializing in Organization and Management. Early work experience includes many USAF assignments including serving as a bomber instructor pilot and managing an AF headquarters section. Subsequently, he joined aerospace corporations and served in program and special project management and engineering capacities included aero software management. Following this, he formed escrow and real estate corporations as a real estate broker and then served as vice president for an investment corporation spending significant period building joint ventures in China. He also assisted a university in establishing community colleges in Thailand and has continuously taught University programs over the past 20 years.